PRACTICAL WORK DONE BY BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLUBS

Nearly 14,000 Young People Obtaining Experience in Farming and Home Economics.

Almost 14,000 Missouri boys and girls joined the Boys' and Girls' Clubs, organized by the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri throughout the state, in the year ending June 30, 1916. Over 2,000 of these have already finished some line of work, and received achievement buttons as a reward of efficiency.

The work offered is sewing, corn growing, stock judging, poultry management, pig feeding, gardening, canning and baking. Clubs are organized as far as possible through the schools, the teacher generally being the local club leader and the county superintendent of schools the county leader. Instructions and reports are sent free by the College of Agriculture and the members of the staff of the agricultural Extension service visit the clubs and attend and address the meetings.

The prescribed course of study, including much practical work, usually lasts about seven months. At the end of that time, members who have satisfactorily completed the course are given achievement buttons.

County exhibits and contests are held and all the clubs of the county take part. Individual and club prizes are given. Members who win in the contests are encouraged to take part in the state contests at the University of Missouri during Farmers' Week January of each year.

The College of Agriculture is trying by these clubs to teach agriculture and home economics in a forceful and practical manner to the boys and girls of the state, and to make them more valuable to themselves and Missouri.

Uses Pictures in Teaching Coaching.

To avoid exertion and other objectionable features to physical illustrations in the teaching of track during the summer, Athletic director C. L. Brewer of the University of Missouri has adopted an easier and more popular method for his class in the theory of coaching. The new method is the use of pictures. For instance, when the class is studying sprinting a picture is produced of the man on the mark ready for the pistol; next a view of the athlete making his first step, and so on. Thus the quickness, the exertion and the correct form are all studied. The method is practical and is working very successfully.
